

I updated my patch to adjust to the latest upstream source code.

- > While Mincho and Gothic loosely compare to serif and sans serif styles
- > I think the font family classification terminology should be language-agnostic

Thank Oliver for kind comments. I agree that "M (stand for Mincho)", "G (stand for Goshikku or Gothic)" are not language-agnostic. However CJK language users require language specific fonts for each language. In fact, Adobe have provided free CJK fonts "Source Han" and prepared 4 kinds of localized font files Simplified Chinese, Traditional Chinese, Japanese and Korean to support regional variations.

<https://source.typekit.com/source-han-serif/>

I think 8 kinds of definitions for CJK (4 regional variations and 2 styles) is minimum as basic fonts. Since we need 4 regional variants, I do not think language-specific naming is unappropriate for standard name.

"Source Han" has localized font names and they are consistent of my proposal.

Source Han Sans Simplified Chinese : 思源黑体 sīyuán hēitǐ : CSH ; H stand for hēitǐ
Source Han Serif Simplified Chinese : 思源宋体 sīyuán sòngtǐ : CSS ; S stand for sòngtǐ

Source Han Sans Traditional Chinese : 思源黑體 sīyuán hēitǐ : CTH ; H stand for hēitǐ
Source Han Serif Traditional Chinese : 思源宋體 sīyuán sòngtǐ : CTS ; S stand for sòngtǐ

Source Han Sans Japanese : 源ノ角ゴシック Gen-no-kaku-goshikku : JPG ; G stand for Goshikku
Source Han Serif Japanese : 源ノ明朝 Gen-no-mincho : JPM ; M stand for Mincho

Source Han Sans Korean : 본고딕 Bon GoTik : KRG ; G stand for Gotik
Source Han Serif Korean : 본명조 Bon MyeongJo : KRM ; M stand fo Myeongjo

If you still do not agree the language-specific name, language-agnostic names based on English could be possible for example CSSS, CSSR, CTSS, CTSR, JPSS, JPSR, KRSS, KRSR as followings:

Source Han Sans Simplified Chinese :: CSSS SS stand for Sans-serif Source Han Serif Simplified Chinese :: CSSR SR stand for Serif

Source Han Sans Traditional Chinese :: CTSS Source Han Serif Traditional Chinese :: CTSR

Source Han Sans Japanese :: JPSS Source Han Serif Japanese :: JPSR

Source Han Sans Korean :: KRSS Source Han Serif Korean :: KRSR

Actually, I still recommend the former language-specific ones. But I accept the latter language-agnostic ones if you do not agree my opinion.

Best,